Jackson County During COVID-19

During the COVID-19 response Jackson County agencies are requesting that you call before you come to visit County Offices. "I want to assure the public that our employees are still working hard and are still providing services within the County," said County Board Chair Ray Ransom. "We are encouraging the public to call ahead because many of the Departments can offer online services or answer questions over the phone". All buildings are staffed and continuing to operate during the outbreak.

On Monday March 30, the Jackson County Courthouse will be limiting access to one door on the north side of the Courthouse. The lobby of the Jackson County Health and Human Services building will remain open. The Jackson County Forestry and Parks hiking trails and parks are open to the public, but offices will be closed to the public. The Jackson County Highway Department is available by appointment only.

There are still no positive cases of COVID-19 in Jackson County although there is testing taking place. "Chairman Ransom did declare a County Emergency Declaration on March 26 because County resources are starting to be stretched and we wanted to ensure the County has resources for the COVID response," said Kristina Page, Jackson County Emergency Management Coordinator. "This helps ease some of the County rules for employees and allows us to use all County resource as needed towards the response", Page said.

"We feel it is critical for the County government to continue to assist our citizens though these challenging times", said Ransom. "While we may be doing business a little differently, we are still here serving our communities".
